Interesting this blog, Cuina catalana, which has arrived to us through Sara, from Delícies del rebost. It is worth reading the last text, La cuina de l'àvia està de moda, a critical reflection that chef Jean Luc Figueras makes about the supposed return of Catalan cuisine by prestigious cooks. This blog forms part of the project "Marca cuina catalana", which aims to ensure that the gastronomy from here becomes a "cultural identifier". On this page, which is just over a month old, it will help to announce events, proposing recipes, commenting restaurants.

On Friday, March 19, they want to celebrate the first day of Catalan cuisine, and propose to celebrate it by preparing some traditional pastries such as Sant Josep cream (which is today), typical Catalan cream. On the blog there are several versions: the traditional, low in calories and without sugar, for those who are allergic to milk or lactose-enriched with proteins.
